Utica Glass Blower Suddenly Goes Insane

Taken To The State Hospital In Columbus

(Newark American Tribune)

Marshall Hobbs of Utica, with two assistants, brought into probate court Friday afternoon a problem in Joe Miller, a glassblower Miller, on his arrival in the city, at once went to the lodge room of the Elks, where he said that he had the applications of two candidates. It was seen by the men in charge that the man was laboring under a fixed delusion and also that if he was antagonized he would make trouble.

He is of powerful build, and while he told Doctors Knauss and Richards, who conducted the investigation in probate, that he was 43 years of age, he is as quick as a cat and would put up a terrific struggle. While the inquest was on he talked continually and showed that he had traveled over the country and was a man of considerable culture and general knowledge. He exhibited his identification card in the Glassworkers' union and his traveling card of the order of Elks. It developed that he had not slept for 48 hours.

The two men who accompanied him here were fellow-workmen, and it was with their promise to visit the "Elks' Home" in Columbus that Deputy Sheriff Martin and Marshall Hobbs induced him to go to the asylum. He was taken over on the 3:30 car this afternoon.

Must Stand Trial For Murder At Ashland

Ashland, Feb. 22—The indictment against ex-Policeman Tod L. Spreng, charged with murder in the first degree for the shooting of Cloyd Ebert during a raid on a beer party here last fall, was sustained by Judge William T. Devor of common pleas court. Judge Devor overruled a motion to quash the indictment and set the case for trial on March 5.

The Ebert shooting resulted in an investigation of the local grand jury by Attorney General Hogan, it being claimed by Ebert's widow that discrimination was being made in Spreng's favor. The charge was not upheld.

PLANS

For The Inauguration About Completed

Structure For The Camera Men Is Enlarged

And Other Details Given The Finishing Touch

Washington, Feb. 22—A coat of white paint applied today to the square reading desk from which Woodrow Wilson will deliver his inaugural address March 4 constituted one of the real "finishing touches" to the great temporary structure that has gone up on the east front of the Capitol in preparation for inauguration.

Across a stretch of asphalt pavement carpenters still are working on the rampart-like stand from which a battery of cameras and motion picture machines will be trained upon the inaugural scene, but the managers of affairs at the Capitol promise that a week before the day of action practically every detail of the arrangements at the Capitol will have been completed.

Demands from photographers for space on the camera stand have resulted in the extension of the structure. Provision now is made for at least 50 cameras.

These will be trained upon the square center platform rising a few feet above the outside edge of the immense 8,000-seat stand, which stretches back in a gentle rise to the doors of the Capitol.

On every available corner of the Capitol and from the tops of House and Senate wings of the building supplementary stands have been reared looking down upon the main structure and affording perches for Capitol employees and others who cannot be accommodated on the main structure.

Days and nights of labor by the Joint Congressional Committee, of which Senator Crane is chairman, and by E. L. Cornelius, Sergeant at Arms of the Senate; Elliott Woods, Superintendent of the Capitol, and army officers representing the General Inaugural Committee, have resulted in the arrangements of most of the details for the event still 11 days away.

Under the reading stand, at which Governor Wilson will stand to address the crowd after he takes the oath of office, is a concealed gate that will swing open to allow him to descend to his carriage for the return to the White House without passing through the crowd on the stands.

President Taft and President-elect Wilson will pass into the Capitol up the broad steps of the Senate wing and will go, after the ceremonies in the Senate chamber through the central door of the Capitol to the inaugural stand.

The entire area of the Capitol grounds will be policed on inauguration day by the regular Washington police. The Capitol police will be withdrawn into the Capitol Building for protective purposes.

The doors of the Capitol, to which admission may be had by special card only, are to be turned over, however, to strange doorkeepers, so that old friendships and official prestige may have nothing to do with breaking down the strict rules of the day.

Sergeant-at-Arms Cornelius is following the same method in handling the Senate gallery for the ceremonies attendant to the inauguration of Vice President-elect Marshall. Head ushers from the theaters of Washington have been engaged to handle the seating of guests, so that official pressure may not be exerted on the regular Capitol employees. With only 798 seats in the galleries extreme methods are sometimes resorted to by those anxious to witness the spectacle in the Senate chamber.

In front of the inaugural platform, flanked on the one side by the midshipmen from Annapolis and on the other by the cadets from West Point, will be Major General Leonard Wood and his staff guarding the space between Wilson and the camera rampart. As he begins his inaugural address these guards will draw in toward the stand, so that the crowd behind may come within range of his voice.

After some difficulty provision has been made to get Wilson's personal guests, who will number 200, off the inaugural stand and up through the crowded streets to the White House to the official review. Special stairways in the rear of the stands and a fleet of motor cars will be used.

A special invitation to attend the ceremonies today was sent by the Inaugural Committee to 25 Indians now in New York, attending the laying of a cornerstone for an Indian monument in New York harbor. If the red men accept they will be provided with mounts and given a special place in the procession. They include representatives of the Sioux, Crow, Cheyenne, Cheyenne, Flatheads, Grosventres, Arickarees and Mandans.

Plans for the civic section of the procession have been formally approved and the order in which the civic organizations will march was drawn up and sent today to General Wood. General Wood declined to make public the program until he could consult with his aid, General James E. Stewart, of Chicago, who will be the Marshal of that division.

Formal announcement also was made that the Marine Corps will not be represented in the line because of the sudden summons for possible duty in the Mexican troubles. It had been intended to have 1,000 of the sea soldiers in the procession.

Sued For $25,000 Damages In New York

White Plains, N. Y., Feb. 21—Charles E. Palmer of Tarrytown has brought suit for $25,000 against William Vincent Astor, son of the late John Jacob Astor, for injuries received on Sept. 30, 1910, at Irvington. According to Palmer, Vincent Astor was driving an automobile at a mile a minute along Broadway, in Irvington when, in turning out to pass a car, the machine crashed into the motorcycle Palmer was riding. The suit was originally brought against John Jacob Astor, as Vincent was under age. Now that the son has attained his majority the suit is directed against him.

VITAL WASHINGTON NEWS

TAVENNER, "WRITER AND THINKER," GIVES US THE FACTS AS THEY REALLY EXIST.

Washington, Feb. 22—Because a half dozen Americans have been accidentally killed through their persistence in remaining in the city of Mexico while a war is in progress, would the American nation be justified in sending an army to Mexico when such action would probably result in thousands of our soldiers being shot down?

Intervention in Mexico would in all probability result in a bloody war that would last no one knows how many years. It is certain that all the factions of Mexicans would unite immediately to fight against any invasion of their country. It is estimated that 300,000 men would be required to keep the entire of Mexico under subjection. The cost of such a war would be tremendous. And the poor would pay it, largely.

At the time this is written, no Americans have been killed save by accident. Every American in Mexico City was offered opportunity to go to some other city in Mexico where there would be no danger from stray bullets. In the event that Americans should be attacked, the situation would be vastly different. There would then be some reason for intervention.

There is only one big reason for intervention now, and that is that American capitalists having money invested in Mexico would like to have this nation use its soldiers as policemen to keep the peace in Mexico so they could proceed with their exploitation projects. The men who most desire American intervention in Mexico are not worrying over American lives in Mexico, but American dollars in Mexico. They are not worrying about how many lives of American soldiers would be snuffed out should the United States make war on the neighbor to the South; they are thinking of the amount of dividends they could harvest after the war was over, when they could proceed to safely exploit under the protection of the Stars and Stripes.

Would Try Municipal Ownership
The United States government is operating a little railroad down on the Panama canal so successfully that it is contemplating the construction of another line of its own up in Alaska.

President Taft is not in favor of municipal ownership of anything himself, but recently he submitted to Congress a special message on Alaskan railroads, and quoted the Alaskan Railroad Commission as concluding that government construction of Alaskan railroads is the only possible solution of the problem of the development of Alaska's resources. The commission certainly cannot be accused of radicalism. It was appointed by President Taft and is made up of Maj. Jay J. Morrow, of the Army Engineer Corps; Alfred H. Brooks, a geologist in the Geological survey; Leonard M. Cox, of the U. S. Navy, and Colin M. Ingersoll, consulting railroad engineer of New York City.

The reason given by the commission for favoring government construction is interesting. The commission finds that if private capital was used to build the road, the government would have to pay profits, whereas the government can do the work at actual cost.

The commission finds that if constructed by private capital the road would be forced by the necessity of earning 6 per cent on its indebtedness to make a passenger rate of at least 7 cents per mile and an average freight rate of 8 cents per ton mile, which rates are so high it is feared they would be prohibitive. But the government would not have to earn interest, profits, etc., and could operate very nicely at 5 cents for freight and 6 cents for passenger traffic!

JOY

Brought To Parents By "Resurrection" Of Child

Philadelphia, Feb. 22—Deep grief came to one family and ecstasies of joy to another here today when a mix-up in the identity of two children who had been sent to the municipal hospital suffering from scarlet fever was straightened out. Yesterday a family named Kaufman refused to accept a three-year-old child turned over to them because it was not their little girl.

An investigation followed, and today the hospital authorities sent for a mother who had been notified two weeks ago that her daughter had died. When she saw the child sent to the Kaufman family yesterday she instantly recognized her daughter, and her joy knew no bounds.

Two weeks ago she buried a child that was turned over to her in a sealed coffin.

The parents of the Kaufman child visited the hospital, and after looking at all the children there did not recognize any as their daughter.

The hospital authorities are now convinced that the dead child is the Kaufman girl.

Grate one and a half cupsful of strong cheese, add one teaspoonful of dry mustard, three tablespoonfuls of olive oil and two tablespoonfuls of mild vinegar. ## Apple Stuffed For Roast Pork

Add a bay leaf, one teaspoonful of minced onion, half a teaspoonful of salt, and a little cayenne pepper to two and one-half cupsful of white stock; simmer for 20 minutes and strain. Pare and core 10 tart apples. Place in the bottom of an agate pan; pour the strained stock over them and simmer until they can be pierced with a fork; carefully remove them from the stock and set aside to cool. Blanch two cupsful of chestnut meats, slice, cover with the stock, add four teaspoonfuls of currant jelly and simmer until tender. If the meats are too moist, drain. Fill the center of the apples with the chestnut mixture and serve with roast pork. This recipe will serve a dozen persons.

German Fruit Snaps

Cream one cupful of butter and add two cupsful of sugar gradually; stir into this mixture, without separating, three eggs, one teaspoonful of soda dissolved in half a cupful of warm water, one pound of chopped seeded raisins, and one cupful of chopped English walnuts. Add sufficient flour to make a soft dough, roll out in rounds, and bake at once.

Lemon Pie Without Pastry

Butter a pie plate generously and cover with a three eighths of an inch deep layer of rolled and sifted unsweetened cracker crumbs, patting them down to form a smooth layer adhering to the plate. Fill with the following mixture and bake in a moderate oven until firm and delicately brown. Filling: Heat one fourth of a cupful of lemon juice, add the grated rind of one lemon, and one teaspoonful of constrict mixed with one cupful of sugar. Boil one minute, then add the well-beaten yolks of three eggs and cook in a double boiler, like soft custard, until it thickens.
